FOR REGIONAL ASSOCIATIONS

F. N. SHEPHERD EXPLAINS NEW BANKING DEVELOPMENT.

TO KANSAS CITY MEET

Executive Manager of American Bankers Visits Here.—Endorses Clearing House Movement.

Fred N. Shepherd, of New York City, executive manager of the American Bankers' association, visited in Maryville Saturday with his sister, Miss Grace M. Shepherd, of the State Teachers College faculty. Mr. Shepherd came here from Chicago where he attended a bankers' meeting. He left yesterday for Kansas City where he will attend a special conference of the clearing house section today.

The Kansas City meeting will be attended by the presidents and secretaries of state bankers' associations, the state bank commissioners, the chief national bank examiners representatives from the comptroller's office and other bankers who have given special study to the question of group cooperation for the common good.

Mr. Shepherd says:

"At the Kansas City conference it is hoped definite plans and recommendations will be worked out for the guidance of bankers desiring to avail themselves of the advantages and protection of regional clearinghouse associations, for it has long been recognized that the hundreds of clearinghouse associations now in operation in the principal towns and cities of the country constitute the chief line of defense against bad banking practices and have proven themselves to be the chief factor in bringing about reforms in banking regulations, improvement in banking methods and the promotion of sound banking practices.

"The first regional clearinghouse association of this type, embracing the banks of five counties, was formed last year at Fremont, Neb., under the leadership of Dan V. Stephens, president of the Fremont State Bank. This association, comprising seventy-five banks, has installed a credit bureau, employed a secretary and arranged with the state banking department to allocate two state examiners to its district. Also the Northern Minnesota Clearinghouse Association, centering at Bomidji, Minn., has been recently organized, embracing the banks of seven counties. It has set up a credit bureau and other clearinghouse features and provides for more effective utilization of existing state and national examination forces. In numerous other sections, bankers are actively taking steps toward the installation of similar associations, notably in Wisconsin, Iowa, Illinois, Missouri, Kansas, Utah and Mississippi.

"State Bank Commisioner S. L. Cantley of Missouri, in advocating organization of regional clearinghouse associations, has declared that the present system of bank supervision is 'vitally defective.' In his own jurisdiction of Missouri he is urging that the banks be organized into district clearinghouses associations, each composed of several counties, and that each district organization engage an examiner or manager accountable to an executive committee, with an office centrally located, to function in the same manner as clearinghouse associations, keeping a complete credit file available for all banks in the district and maintaining reciprocal relations with examiners in other districts."

AN INCREASE ON TOWN LOTS RECOMMENDED

State Tax Commission Asks 5 Per Cent Hike, Making Valuation $6,814,064.

The Missouri State Tax Commission has recommended that the $6,489,585 assessed valuation of town lots in Nodaway county be increased 5 per cent.

This information was received by Fred Wright, county clerk, from William M. Chapman, secretary of the state tax commission, who stated that the recommendation has been made to the state board of equalization.

It was the only change recommended on the assessed valuation in Nodaway county, made as of June 1, 1927, on which the 1928 taxes will be extended. The assessed valuation of this date for Nodaway county was $58,042,892.

Should the recommended increase on town lots be made, it will make the assessed valuation on this class of property $6,814,064. The assessed valuation on town property the previous year was $6,515,680.

PACKERS LOSE IN AN APPEAL

SUPREME COURT REFUSES TO CANCEL 1920 DECREE.

LIMITED IN ACTIVITIES

Big Companies Can't Engage in Wholesale Grocery Business, Own Stockyard Concerns or Railroads.

Washington, March 19.—Swift and Armour packing interests lost in United States Supreme Court today an attempt to cancel the famous 1920 packers' consent decree. Justice Brandeis announced the court's decision.

The 1920 decree, entered in the District of Columbia supreme court as the culmination of a anti-trust suit started by the federal government, was signed by 135 defendants, including representatives of all the "Big Five" Swift, Armour, Cudahy, Wilson and Morris.

The decree enjoined the packers from engaging in many activities which the government alleged to be in violation of the Sherman and Clayton anti-trust laws, including holding of stock in public stockyard market companies and terminal railroads, and merchandising of wholesale groceries, canned goods and other commodities not directly related to the meat packing industry.

Swift and Armour interests in 1924 commenced legal action to have the decree set aside, on the ground that the court had exceeded its authority. The United States opposed the new suit, and was joined by organized wholesale grocers, who argued their business would be damaged by the packers' competition if the decree were vacated.

The District of Columbia Supreme Court refused to set aside its decree. The packers appealed, and the district court of appeals asked the United States Supreme Court for a ruling as to jurisdiction. The high court directed that the entire record of the case be brought before it, so the entire question at issue could be studied and decided.

Judge Brandeis stated that the court decided it had jurisdiction to review the case and it had concluded that the District of Columbia Supreme Court was right in dismissing the Swift-Armour petition. The opinion did not go into the merits of the anti-trust law aspects of the case. The opinion was unanimous, no dissent being announced.

BONDS SENT TO A JUDGE?

SENATORS INVESTIGATE A MYSTERIOUS PACKAGE.

FROM OIL COMPANY

Justice F. L. Siddons Makes Positive Denial, While Committee Will Probe Further.

Washington, Ill., Mar. 19.—The Senate Teapot Dome investigation has extended to Washington, Ill., in connection with a misdirected package, it was learned today.

A representative of the Senate investigating committee obtained from M. B. Frederick, American Railway Express Co. agent, copies of two telegrams relating to the package.

Frederick told the United Press he received the telegrams in November, 1921. He refused to reveal their nature.

"The man from the Senate committee told me to keep mum," he said.

It was understood the telegrams advised him to re-direct to Washington, D. C., a package which had been addressed to Washington, Ill., by mistake.

Washington, March 19.—A special executive session of the Senate Teapot Dome committee was called this afternoon by Chairman Nye to determine what will be done to check up on the sensational story given the Nye subcommittee in Chicago, involving an alleged mysterious package supposedly intended for a Washington, D. C. man, but misdirected to Washington, Ills.

The testimony is understood to have indicated that the alleged package was sent by an oil company and intercepted by a man in Washington, Ill. Subsequently, a member of the committee admitted that "possibly" a member of the judiciary was mentioned in connection with the case.

Justice F. L. Siddons, who recently sentenced Harry Sinclair, oil man, and others for contempt, denied emphatically he knew of any package or had received any from a Sinclair Oil Company or anyone else. His statement followed publication of reports that the committee called an "F. L. Siddons" in Chicago, who did not respond.

Checking Accuracy.

Committee investigators already have been put to work to check the accuracy of the story told the sub-committee. It was learned today they have reported there was an exchange of communications between the Sinclair consolidated oil office in Chicago and a man in Washington, Ill., concerning the erroneous address of a package which the Sinclair people had intended to send to Washington, D. C.

"I must decline to say anything about the matter now," Nye told the United Press this afternoon, "because any statement I would make might involve some wholly innocent parties. The facts will all be brought to light, probably when we resume hearings Wednesday, and I do not wish to say anything until then."

The committee's startling information was obtained in executive session of the Teapot Dome special sub-committee, and was of such serious character that the committee is making public no names or details until it has had an opportunity to test the accuracy of the story.

A "Mystery Witness."

Chairman Nye, who with Senator Norbeck conducted the Chicago hearings, told the United Press today it is true that was a "mystery witness" at Chicago.

"Rather than put him on the stand directly," he said, "we had him come to visit with us. His testimony was of such a startling nature that we did not feel justified in bringing it out publicly before we had a chance to investigate."

"No one knows the contents of the package or if it was even actually in existence," Nye told the United Press.

That assertion was taken as indicating that the committeemen had some doubt about the accuracy of the story they had heard, and Nye made it plain that the committee intended to clear up the situation as quickly as possible.

From Sinclair Company?

Asked whether the committee intended to call a local judge for examination, Nye explained he could see no reason for doing so now. There are further angles to be checked before such a course would be taken, if at all.

"We intend to put this story at rest—one way or other directly," he said.

It was reported that the mystery package emanated from a Sinclair company. Harry F. Sinclair, storm center of the committee investigation, has been pictured heretofore in the role of distribuator of Liberty bonds gleaned from the Continental Oil Company's deal in 1921. Part of the bonds went, through a third party, to former Secretary of Interior Fall, and some of them found their way to the Republican campaign funds.

Justice Siddons told the United Press he could not make a too-sweeping denial of having received any package, or knowing of such a package, or anyone's intention to send him any package.

A COMPROMISE IN NICARAGUA

U. S. SUPERVISION OF ELECTIONS TO BE LEGALIZED.

DECREE TO BE ISSUED

President Diaz to Authorize by Proclamation What Nicaraguan Legislature Refused.

Washington, March 19.—American and Nicaraguan officials have reached a compromise in the Nicaraguan election controversy, it was learned at the state department today. Failure of the Nicaraguan legislature to legalize American supervision of the election in October, it was understood, will be overcome by an executive decree to be issued by President Diaz in a few days.

The first step was taken, Secretary Kellogg said, when Joaquin Gomez, chairman of the Nicaraguan electoral commission, resigned from that office. Brigadier-General Frank R. McCoy, designated by President Coolidge to supervise the voting, was immediately named by the Nicaraguan supreme court to fill the vacancy.

The action was provided for in the bill presented by the legislature. It is expected to be followed in a few days by a presidential decree which will authorize McCoy to take complete charge of the electoral machinery.

Kellogg said such a decree would not violate the Nicaraguan constitution.

The electoral commission is composed of a representative of each of the two major parties, while the head of the commission is appointed by the supreme court. Kellogg declared there was nothing in the Nicaraguan laws which prevented the appointment of a foreigner to this post.

TOMB OF S-4 VICTIMS OPEN

CRAFT IS BROUGHT INTO BOSTON DRY DOCK TODAY.

MEN DIED IN BUNKS

No Sign of Effort to Escape Through Torpedo Tubes—No Records Found by Naval Board.

Boston, March 19.—The scene in the torpedo chamber of the submarine S-4, where six men waited in vain for three days to be saved from their Underwater tomb, was described today over a telephone line from within the hull to a shack at the side of the drydock.

The naval board of inspection entered the battered hulk just after 1 p. m., when the interior was declared sufficiently cleared of water and foul air.

Commander Harold E. Saunders, chief salvage officer at Provincetown, where the ship was sent to the bottom in a collision with the coast guard destroyer Paulding, was the first to enter the Torpedo room.

Lieut. A. C. Smith, a member of the board, described the scene in the torpedo room.

Died in Bunks.

"The floor is covered with oil and slime," he said. "The men seem to have died in their bunks, but were washed onto the floor by the water. The torpedo room door was dogged tight and proped with a lead maul.

"The window of the door appeared to have been leaking, for it was covered with a sheet of rubber.

"Although none of the bodies wore gas masks, there are indications they were used.

"Fitch (Lieut. Graham Newell Fitch) has been identified, by an Annapolis class ring and an athletic sweater bearing the date 1923. Three bodies are at the foot of the ladder, two aft of the room under bunks.

"There was apparently no effort to use the torpedo tubes for escape. The doors to the torpedo tubes had not been tampered with.

No Written Record.

"We have been unable to find any written record, but are still searching. It's hard to walk around here, because of the bodies on the floor. The bodies are in rather bad condition."

Besides Fitch, the torpedo room contained Russel A. Crabb of San Diego, Cal.; George Polnar, South Omaha, Neb.; Roger Short, Booneville, Mo.; Joseph L. Stevens, Providence, R. I.; and Frank Snizek, Ridgefield, N. J.

Superficial examination of the torpedo room was completed shortly after 2 p. m. The board then entered the battery room, where it was explained they would find the bodies of William Dempsey of Walkerville, Ont., and J. W. Sterman of Riverside, R. I.

The brief description gave further clues to what happened in the torpedo room through the long hours of December 18, 19 and 20 when the six men vainly waited to be rescued.

The fact that the bodies had been in the bunks indicated how Fitch, an experienced submarine man, had kept his crew recumbent and motionless, so they could breathe more slowly and exhaust less of the precious air.

One Oxygen Tube Not Used.

A member of the board who came out of the submarine after the inspection of the forward compartment said the oxygen tank in the torpedo room appeared not to have been used. The tube was still charged and the valve closed, he said.

The men were only partly dressed and only one wore shoes. They had endeavored to sleep under blankets.

The submarine was warped into dry dock at the Boston Navy yard today.

The feat was accomplished without mishap, the hull easing gently to her position in the dry-dock.

The same good fortune which attended the submarine's trip from Provincetown, where it was raised from the ocean bed last Saturday, marked its placement in drydock.

A short time later, Commander Harold E. Saunders, who supervised the docking operations, appeared on the conning tower of the wrecked undersea boat and put up an American flag at half mast.

A basket of pink and white roses rested over the torpedo room. It had been put there during the morning by an unknown person.

Captain J. D. Wilson, senior member of the board of inspection said this afternoon it was hoped to get the bodies out of the hull before night.

G. O. P. Must "Purge Itself," Says Capper

Washington, March 19.—The Republican party must make plain by forceful action that "it indignantly repudiates the men who participated in the rape of the government oil lands," Senator Arthur Capper, Republican, Kansas said today.

"The smudge of oil being smeared blackly across the pages of history is repulsive to the citizens of the entire country," Capper said. "The trail is slimy, odorous, reeking with corruption."

The Kansas Senator suggested laws "with teeth in them" to limit campaign expenditures, and to require that the real source of every contribution be a matter of public record.

LESS DANGER FROM THE AIR

U. S. DEVELOPS ANTI-AIRCRAFT DEFENSE.

WEAPONS PERFECTED

New Gun Can Be Moved Rapidly, and Tests Show Great Increase in Accuracy.

Washington, March 19.—The dreaded bombing airplane, potential menace to American cities, government buildings and military structures in time of war, is losing in its race with anti-aircraft development.

Residents of seaboard towns are now more secure against possible air raids than they have been at any time in the last decade, army officials assert. One important result of the recent extra-ordinary improvement in anti-aircraft armament and firing control is the increased confidence it has given military authorities that they can protect key points, including the Treasury, Panama Canal locks and coastal fortifications, against serious damage from bombing attacks.

This situation was revealed to the United Press today by Major General Clarence C. Williams, chief of army ordnance.

Reduced to Minimum.

Williams made no claim that these key structures have been absolutely guaranteed against enemy bombers, but nevertheless made it clear that the menace of the death dealing flying machines had been virtually reduced to a minimum.

"So long as an enemy airman is intent on dropping bombs on a certain building or military site," he said, "there isn't anybody on earth who can stop him from trying. But we feel we are in a position to keep him from doing any really serious damage."

It would be more difficult to protect entire cities from air raids, Williams pointed out, because of their size. Protection for thickly populated centers has, however, been greatly enhanced by the perfecting two months ago of a mobile carriage for the new 3-inch anti-aircraft gun, the principal weapon used against bombardment planes. The new equipment is stable under all conditions of firing, can be set up for action in less than 15 minutes, and is so light in weight that it can be rushed on short notice to any part of a city or fortification likely to be bombed.

Gun Itself Improved.

The gun itself has been improved, now being provided with an inner removable liner which makes it possible to reline it while in action instead of sending it to an arsenal. The new device has also increased its range and efficiency. The gun fires a standard 3-inch shell at a muzzle velocity of 2,600 feet per second, while its vertical range is about 5,000 yards (3 miles) and the maximum horizontal range 11,000 yards.

A new 105-millimeter piece with mobile carriage has been developed for auxiliary use. According to an official bulletin, it is the largest "and most powerful anti-aircraft weapon yet tested by our services." It has a muzzle velocity of 3,000 feet per second and will fire a 33-pound shell to a height of 12,000 yards (seven and a half miles).

Support of the assertion that anti-aircraft defense is making remarkable strides forward is found in the result of tests conducted each fall by the coast artillery. In 1925 the 3-inch guns registered 2.03 hits per battery per minute; in 1926 they registered 6.9 hits per minute, an increase in efficiency of more than 200 per cent. This increase was even more significant in view of the higher attitudes at which the targets were towed in 1926. Figures for last year's tests have not been compiled, but they are known to show an even greater increase in efficiency.

First Reporting by Radio Is Done by Norvel Sayler, Hopkins

For the first time, so far as is known here, news was sent by radio Saturday direct to the newspaper for which it was intended, and Nodaway county was the scene of the experiment.

Norvel Sayler, amateur radio operator at Hopkins, sent an account of a basketball game and a fire to the Democrat-Forum.

Sayler was "picked up" on about 200 metres on the receiving set of H. C. Todd, manager of the Hanamo Telephone Co. This set is connected with a loud speaker in the Democrat-Forum office.

"Hello, Lynn, Hello, Lynn," Sayler broadcast. Lynn Mahan, Hopkins student at the State Teachers College and a Democrat-Forum reporter, was Lynn. He answered by the People's telephone. Sayler then gave him reports, his voice coming in more clearly by radio than by phone.

Sayler is believed now to own and operate the only amateur radio station in Nodaway county, except the Maryville station belonging to Forrest Martin. For several years he has been experimenting with the transmitting phase of radio science and has many times torn down his apparatus, always to rebuild it to a higher degree of perfection. His experiments this winter have brought his equipment to the highest efficiency for amateur sending, making possible his reception by the high wave sets.

The room in which Sayler operates is littered with electrical devices and criss-cross wiring, involving a dozen different devices patterned by his own ingenuity. His apparatus carried a 200 watt tube, which he purchased in Paris last summer.

Sayler is a senior in the Hopkins High School.

The station is a licensed amateur broadcasting set-up sending under the call letters, 9EAO.

Local Educators Give Impressions of Boston

Phillips and Lamkin Speak Before Men's Monday Forum.—Limited of Student Bodies Argued.

Homer T. Phillips and President Uel W. Lamkin were speakers today at the luncheon meeting of the Men's Monday Forum. They gave reports of the Boston meeting of the department of superintendence of the National Education Association, which they attended.

Mr. Phillips said he was impressed with the "group consciousness of New England and what it stands for."

The early Puritan stock of Boston has been succeeded largely by that from South Europe, Mr. Phillips said he found.

One topic of unusual interest at the Boston meeting was the question of limiting student bodies in institutions of higher learning, both speakers said. One view, expounded by the president of Harvard University, was that students should be selected, while this argument was answered by another that the state should educate all on the level to which they are capable of receiving it. The latter, Mr. Phillips said, is the more general sentiment among educators at present.

Mr. Lamkin explained the workings of both the American Association of Teachers Colleges and the North Central Association of Colleges.

The Rev. J. Howard Thompson of Hopkins was a guest.

Organization Republican leaders in New York said 26 delegates from New York would be pledged to Secretary of Commerce Hoover rather than 47 claimed by the Hoover committee.

To Eliminate Road Laws That Conflict

New and Modern Highway Legislation One of Items on Program of Next Missouri Assembly.

Jefferson City, Mo., March 19.—Elimination of many obsolete and conflicting road laws enacted during Missouri's rapid evolution in highway construction, and the passage of new and modern road legislation, is one of the principal items on the program for the revision session of the state legislature next session.

The evolution of Missouri's roads from mud to concrete, and from local supervision to state-wide control in the past few years, has resulted in numerous conflicts in the legislation passed by the various general assemblies in the effort to keep pace with the growing highway system, according to Representative D. L. Bales of Shannon County, a member of the Legislative Revision Commission.

"Perhaps no other subject, unless it be the question of education, has received the attention of the law making body of Missouri in the last ten or fifteen years that the subject of roads has received," Representative Bales said. "It is but natural that it should be so, for never in the history of the world has there been the same improvement in transportation facilities over roads that has occurred since the revision of 1909.

"As this evolution of road transportation has progressed the Legislature has endeavored to provide necessary legislation for its regulation; sometimes without regard to former acts which had become antiquated and were overlooked in the march of progress. The result is that they still remain upon the statues. To prepare for the 1929 revision session, bills for a complete revision of these laws, as well as other laws so affected, is the duty of the revisies commission.

"There are several counties in the state where eleven separate road taxs are possible under existing laws if the local authorities see fit to levy them. Other statutes and parts of statutes still on the statute books have been declared unconstitutional, and others have long outlived their justification.

"For example there is a law that requires the operator of an automobile to bring his machine to a full stop when meeting any person driving or riding an animal, and remain stationary until the person has passed to a distance of 200 feet. Our laws concerning issuance and payment of road bonds are involved and oftimes conflicting," Bales said.

Poplar Bluff, Mo., March 19.—One of the largest stills discovered here in recent months was raided last week by federal prohibition agents. The 400-gallon still and 2,400 gallons of mash were discovered on the farm of Joe Kaiser eight miles south of here.

BRIDGE WORK BEGINS ON 18

EXCAVATING IN PROGRESS WEST OF BURLINGTON JUNCTION.

MORE ACTIVITY SOON

Dredge Boat Starts Digging Drainage Ditch.—Grading of Highway Expected in Near Future.

State Highway No. 18, running west from Burlington Junction, will soon be under construction, eventually to become one of the best highways in this section.

Excavating has been begun for the bridges over the Nodaway river, and in several corn fields west of Burlington can be seen concrete mixers putting in culverts for the new road.

Men are arriving every day, and as soon as sand arrives, work will begin in earnest.

This will be one of the largest projects ever undertaken by the State Highway Commission. Across the river bottom, which is over a mile, a very high grade will have to be built, besides the large number of steep hills to be cut between Burlington Junction and Tarkio.

Grading has not yet started but the state men in charge of the work are led to believe that it will begin soon. The state surveyors were working Saturday just west of the Wabash tracks, where the grading will probably start.

Besides the highway workers west of the Junction, can also be found a dredge boat beginning the new drainage ditch, which is to be built just south of the new road. The dredge began work Saturday morning and by night they had traveled a considerable distance. After this project is completed by the dredge it will make a small cut on Mill Creek, straightening its course into the river.

The two construction gangs working out of Burlington begin to make that town a lively place and furnish employment for any unemployed workers. Just across the Burlington tracks can be found the numerous camps of workers, giving to Burlington Junction an unexpected addition.

Arthur Stanley's Claim of Being Deputy Sheriff Found Untrue by Officers Here.

He was arrested yesterday at Burlington Junction by Deputy Sheriff U. S. ("Van") Reavis. Stanley posed as a deputy sheriff from Harrison county, but investigation by county officers disclosed he had not been deputized.

5 Business Changes at Burlington Junct.

All Have Taken Place Since First of Year—Theater, Cafe, Hotel, Hardware and Drug Store.

Since January 1, 1928, Burlington Junction has had five business firms change hands. The changes began with the Grand Theater. C. K. Thompson, the former owner, turned the business back to E. C. Johnson, the pioneer show man of Burlington Junction.

Closely following the theater transaction the owners of the Rush Inn, Burlington Junction's new eating house, dissolved partnership. The business started with Harold Nicholas and Jack Byers as proprietors. Nicholas sold his part of the business to Byers, who is now running the eating place. Mr. Nicholas took over a general merchandise store in Skidmore.

The next business transaction was that of the Big Four hardware. L. C. Severs who had been in the hardware business in Burlington Junction for a number of years, took over a hardware store in Bedford, Ia., leaving the Burlington store without a manager. On Monday of last week O. M. Grissinger of Rock Port took over the managership.

About the time of the hardware transaction the Maple Hotel changed hands. E. E. Fike, who purchased the hotel last summer, turned it over to Mrs. Colma Holt of Fairfax, Mo. Mrs. Holt has taken charge of the business and is operating a first class hotel.

The fifth deal was that involving the Rexall Drug Store which was started several years ago by J. G. House, who leased the building and business to Albert C. Kolsesh of King City. Mr. Kolsesh will not take charge until some time in April.

Morris Chick of Maryville spent the week-end in Kansas City. He returned last night.

CLAIM MANY GEORGE VOTES

ENATOR'S STRENGTH GROWING FRIENDS DECLARE.

COUNT 100 DELEGATES

Southern Leaders Change Strategy of Favorite Sons in Each State.

By PAUL R. MALLON.
United Press Staff Correspondent.

Washington, Mar. 19.—Friends of Senator Walter F. George, the Georgia "Favorite son" claimed today that he would go into the Houston Democratic convention with more than 100 votes.

They contend he has developed in the last few days from a hopeless candidate of his states' delegation to an important candidate of the entire South—as Senator Underwood of Alabama was in 1912.

They count 28 votes in Georgia, 24 in Alabama, 24 in North Carolina and 18 in South Carolina, for a basic total of 94. Then they say they expect George delegates to be selected among the 12 in Florida, 26 in Kentucky, 20 in Oklahoma, 24 in Tennessee and 16 in West Virginia.

Change in Strategy.

Their figures, of course, are discounted by friends of Governor Al Smith and others, but the claims reveal a change of strategy on the part of at least a section of the South. The old plan of the southern Smith opposition was to select favorite son delegations in every state, with Senator James A. Reed of Missouri as an open or an unnamed second choice.

The claims also mean that while George's chance of the nomination may be remote, his bloc of southern delegates is growing to such an extent that it will prove to be an unexpected influential power at Houston.

WEDDING TO PRINCE ENDS AT DAYBREAK

American Girl, Now Wife of Maharajah of Indore, Clad in Gold Cloth and Pearls.

Bombay, India, Mar. 19.—At day break today the magnificient program that marked the wedding by which an American girl, Miss Nancy Miller, became her highness the Maharanee Devi Sharmistabi Holkar, was ended.

Full details of the wedding of the Maharajah of Indore have become available, now that the thousands of persons who came to witness the ceremony have departed.

The wedding procession was led by the former Maharajah's troops, headed by pipers' bands playing "Swanee River" and "Marching Through Georgia." The former Maharajah, richly caparisoned, rode on a gray horse. Behind them Miss Miller folowed. She was clad in gold cloth and a dozen pearl ropes were about her throat. She wore diamond clasped pearl wristlets and a pearl tiara as part of an elaborate head dress.

After the ceremony had been performed Saturday there was a huge fireworks demonstration. The celebrations continued Sunday with a banquet and this lasted until daybreak.

The couple plan a honeymoon that will take them to Europe. There the American girl will be operated on for appendicitis.

Kansas City Pastor Supports Al Smith

"A Wholesome Thing" if He Were Elected, Says Dr. Burris A. Jenkins.

Kansas City, Mo., Mar. 19.—A campaign speech for Al Smith as a Democratic candidate for the presidential nomination was made in one of Kansas City's largest churches last night by one of the city's best known pastors.

"It would be a wholesome thing for the country if Governor Smith, a Catholic, were elected to the Presidency," said Dr. Burris A. Jenkins, pastor of the Linwood Christian church here.

"We have been fettered with religious intolerance long enough. It is time to put into effect the spirit of the Constitution, which is opposed to any and all religious discrimination."

Dr. Jenkins upheld the affirmative of the question, "Resolved: That it would be wise from a party standpoint for the Democratic party to nominate Al Smith for the presidency." By a flip of a coin it as decided that Jenkins should uphold the Easterner.

"Governor Smith does not favor return of the saloon," said Jenkins in his argument upholding Smith's stand on prohibition. "He is honest in his belief the Volstead act is the wrong method of enforcement. He feels prohibition as it exists is wrong. But no single individual, even the President of the United States, is strong enough to bring about the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. Prohibition is here to stay."

Buster Strong Wins Fancy Diving Event

Strong is a freshman at Drake University, Des Moines, Ia. Already he has won first places in the Midwestern Junior A. A. U. and All-University meets and placed second in the Midwestern Senior A. A. U. meet in fancy diving.

The Maryville youth will be a member of a Y. M. C. A. team that will be entered in a national swimming meet in Chicago, to be held soon.

14 Men Injured in Colorado Hotel Fire

Two of Victims at Denver Probably Will Die.—One Jumps and Plunges Through Skylight.

Denver, Colo., Mar. 19.—Fourteen men were seriously injured, two probably fatally, when a fire swept the Colorado Hotel here early today.

The two most seriously injured were unidentified. One was horribly burned, while the other was badly cut and suffered other hurts when he attempted to escape the flames by jumping from a window onto the roof of an adjoining building. He missed the roof and plunged through a skylight.

A score of men were trapped on the upper floors of the hotel. They leaped into firemen's nets, while others were injured when they jumped to the pavement.

Damage was estimated at $10,000.

Praises Vision of Isaiah as Example

Foresight That Endures Test of Time Lauded in Sermon of W. N. Dewar.

The vision of Isaiah, when foresight was most needed; when the peaceful throne of Israel had been made vacant by the death of King Uzziah to be succeeded by Jotham, young and unexperienced, filling the land with great anxiety; when the prophets turned to God in the temple for fellowship, was cited by the Rev. William N. Dewar in his sermon yesterday morning at the First Presbyterian Church.

The Reverend Mr. Dewar spoke on "The Vision That Inspires," based on the incident in the life of Isaih. "His vision," the minister said," "brought hope and cheer and meant for him the beginning of a new life." In contract the minister deplored the fading vision in other lives that causes men to "sink back into the old rut of life."

"It is the dark hour when the throne of life seems empty and the future outlook appears dear that God comes into view as the rightful King and guardian of the life's future," the Reverend Mr. Dewar said.

A vision of God, as experienced by Isaiah, does not permit pride but calls for humility, the minister emphasized.

"It is only in the mirror of human love that we can see the reflection of the divine. It is by earthly symbols that we conceived the realities of the unseen.

"Isaiah gave himself to the divine will and placed full trust in Jehovah with his life cleansed, his spirit revived, with willingness and eagerness to carry out his divine commission, and that is the spirit needed today if service is to be a joy," the Reverend Mr. Dewar concluded.

Deplores Show of Physical Strength

Rev. L. E. Lakin Urges More Dependence on the Spiritual Than on the Material.

Declaring that many things designed by God to minister to human life are proving instruments of destruction because of man's desire to exhibit strength, the Rev. L. E. Lakin of Kansas City delivered a sermon yesterday morning at the First Christian Church on "The Attrition of Faith."

The Reverend Mr. Lakin declared that physical prowess has "well nigh wrecked civilization," and he denounced physical display of strength where damage might be inflicted, ill feelings ngendered or seeds of discord sown.

"It's the spiritual rather than the material on which we must depend," e said after pointing out that hope as nation does not depend on the army athered together, equipped and drilld, but upon friendships made; that security for our treasures does not epend upon the strength of vaults and he mechanicism of our safety devices s much as the honesty and integrity f those we trust.

"Whatever structures we build must ave a firm foundation on which to est if they have any permanent value, or values are spiritual."

The speaker emphasized the imporance of the spiritual element in worhip and Christian service and expressd his belief that it is often times forgotten.

"Just so we get the crowd. Just so he building is built and paid for. Just o we get our money for missions. And o we get the current budget raised. All is well, we feel. But such is not he case. Without the underlying piritual element, all our work is in vain."

Burdens Lighter by Sharing With Christ

Not Intended That Sin Be Borne or Religion Burdensome, says Rev. Mitchell.

Life's burdens are made the lighter by sharing them, the Rev. R. A. Mitchell asserted yesterday in a sermon on that subject at the M. E. Church, South.

He took his text from Matthew 11:28, "Come unto me all ye that are weary and heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you."

Sin is the chief burden, Mr. Mitchell said, adding:

"We do not have to bear this burden. It is not intended that we should.

"Sin is discord with the will of God. Jesus gives us rest from this burden of sin by restoring to us fellowship with God. You may go from this place free and rejoicing if you will let Jesus bear your burden of sin and let Him restore you to the fellowship of God."

Some persons, the minister said, are "burdened with religion," making, according to the pastor, "a burden of that which was never intended to be a burden."

"Religion," he said, "was never meant to be some thing we had to carry, but something that would carry us. It is a life of joy and peace in believing. You may find rest as Christ shows you the reality of living."

Likewise, the Reverend Mr. Mitchell pointed out, a legitimate burden may be borne in the wrong way, becoming wearisome.

"There is the burden," he explained, "of sorrow, anxiety and responsibility. From the full measure of them we can never hope to escape. But if you are wearied because you have been seeking to bear these necessary burdens of life in the wrong way, try finding rest by linking yourself up with God. Let Him be your yoke fellow.

"A shared burden, even though it has to be borne, is a light burden, and it does not become wearisome. The happy, peaceful, contented man is he who comes to Christ; though weary and heavy laden, he finds rest unto his soul."

THE STORY THUS FAR

"Mr. Mannix was with me from half-past ten until two in the morning," Alys La Fosse tells Vance. Vance had traced a picture found in the apartment of the murdered Margaret Odell to Alys. He is trying to prove to Markham that Skeel did not commit the murder, despite the fact Skeel's finger-prints were found in the apartment. Vance believes Skeel was hiding in a closet while the murder was committed. Markham ridicules the theory, but Vance is unshaken. He believes the murder was committed by one the the following four: Mannix, Cleaver, Dr. Lindquist or Spotswoode. He is trying to get some information from Alys La Fosse.

CHAPTER 28

"I'm sure it will be a success," spoke with disarming friendliness. "Were you home alone all Monday evening?"

"Hardly." The idea seemed to amuse her. "I went to the 'Scandals'—but I came home early. I knew Louey — Mr. Mannix — was coming."

"I trust he appreciated your sacrifice." Vance, I believe, was disappointed by this unexpected alibi of Mannix's. It was, indeed, so final that further interrogation concerning it seemed futile. After a momentary pause, he changed the subject.

"Tell me; what do you know about a Mr. Charles Cleaver? He was a friend of Miss Odell's.

"Oh, Pop's all right." The girl was plainly relieved by this turn in the conversation. "A good scout. He was certainly gone on Margy. Even after she threw him over for Mr. Spotswoode, he was faithful, and you might say—always running after her, sending her flowers and presents.

"Some men are like that. Poor old Pop! He even phoned me Monday night to call up Margy for him and try to arrange a party.—Maybe if I'd done it, she wouldn't be dead now . . . It's a funny world, isn't it?"

"Oh, no end funny." Vance smoked calmly for a minute; I could not help admiring his self-control. "What time did Mr. Cleaver phone you Monday night—do you recall?" From his voice one would have thought the question of no importance.

"Let me see . . ." She pursed her lips prettily. "It was just ten minutes to twelve. I remember that the little chime clock on the mantel over there was striking midnight and at first I couldn't hear Pop very well. You see, I always keep my clock ten minutes fast so I'll never be late for an appointment.

Vance compared the clock with his watch.

"Yes, it's ten minutes fast.—And what about the party?"

"Oh, I was too busy talking about the new show, and I had to refuse. Anyway, Mr. Mannix didn't want to have a party that night . . . It wasn't my fault, was it?"

"Not a bit of it," Vance assured her. "Work comes before pleasure—especially work as important as yours . . . And now, there is one other man I want to ask you about, and then I won't bother you any more.—What was the situation between Miss Odell and Doctor Lindquist?"

Miss La Fosse became genuinely perturbed.

"I was afraid you were going to ask me about him." There was apprehension in her eyes. "I don't know just what to say. He was wildly in love with Margy; and she led him on, too. But she was sorry for it afterward, because he got jealous—like a crazy person.

"He used to pester the life out of her. And once—do you know!—he threatened to shoot her and then shoot himself. I told Margy to look out for him. But she didn't seem to be afraid. Anyway I think she was taking awful chances. . . . Oh! Do you think it could have been—do you really think——?"

"And wasn't there any one else" Vance interrupted, "who might have felt the same way?—any one Miss Odell had reason to fear?"

"No." Miss La Fosse shook her head. "Margy didn't know many men intimately. She didn't change often, if you know what I mean. There wasn't anybody else outside of those you've mentioned, except, of course, Mr. Spotswoode. He cut Pop out—several months ago. She went to dinner with him Monday night, too. I wanted her to go to the 'Scandals' with me—that's how I know."

Vance rose and held out his hand.

"You've been very kind. And you have nothing whatever to fear. No one shall ever know of our little visit this morning."

"Who do you think killed Margy?" There was genuine emotion in the girl's voice. "Louey says it was probably some burglar who wanted her jewels."

"I'm too wise to sow discord in this happy menage by even questioning Mr. Mannix's opinion," said Vance half banteringly. "No one knows who's guilty; but the police agree with Mr. Mannix."

For a moment the girl's doubts returned, and she gave Vance a searching look.

"Why are you so interested? You didn't know Margy, did you? She never mentioned you."

Vance laughed.

"My dear child! I only wish I knew why I am so deuced concerned in this affair. 'Pon my word, I can't give you even the sketchiest explanation. . . . No, I never met Miss Odell. But it would offend my sense of proportion if Mr. Skeel were punished and the real culprit went free. Maybe I'm getting sentimental. A sad fate, what?"

"I guess I'm getting soft, too." She nodded her head, still looking Vance squarely in the eyes. "I risked my happy home to tell you what I did, because somehow I believed you. . . Say, you weren't stringing me, by any chance?"

Vance put his hand on his heart, and became serious.

"My dear Miss La Fosse, when I leave here it will be as though I had never entered. Mismiss me and Mr. Van Dine here from your mind."

Something in his manner banished her misgivings, and she made us a kittenish farewell.

(Thursday, September 13; afternoon)

"My sleuthing goes better," exulted Vance, when we were again in the street. Fair Alys was a veritable mine of information—eh, what? Only, you should have controlled yourself better when she mentioned her beloved's name—really, you should, Van old thing. I saw you jump and heard you heave. Such emotion is most unbecoming in a lawyer."

From a booth in a drug-store near the hotel he telephoned Markham: "I am taking you to lunch. I have numerous confidences I would pour into your ear." A debate ensued, but in the end Vance emerged triumphant; and a moment later a taxicab was driving up down-town.

"Alys is clever—there are brains in that fluffy head," he ruminated. "She's much smarter than Heath; she knew at once that Skeel wasn't guilty. Her characterization of the immaculate Tony was inelegant but how accurate—oh, how accurate! And you noticed, of course, how she trusted me. Touchin, wasn't it? . . . It's a knotty problem, Van. Something's amiss somewhere."

He was silent, smoking, for several blocks.

"Mannix. . . Curious he should crop up again. And he issued orders to Alys to keep mum. Now, why? Maybe the reason he gave her was the real one. Who knows?—On the other hand, was he with his chere amie from half past ten till early morning? Well, well. Again, who knows? Something queer about that business discussion.

"Then Cleaver. He called up just ten minutes before midnight—oh, yes, he called up. That wasn't a fairy-tale But how could he telephone from a speeding car? He couldn't. Maybe he really wanted to have a party with his recalcitrant Canary, don't y' know. But then, why the brummagem alibi? Funk? Maybe.

"But why the circuitousness?—why didn't hhe call his lost love direct? Ah, perhaps he did! Some one certainly called her by phone at twenty minutes to twelve.

"We must look into that, Van. . . . Yes, he may have called her, and then when a man answered—who the deuce was that man, anyway?—he may have appealed to Alys. Quite natural, y' know. Anyway, he wasn't in Boonton. —Poor Markham! How upset he'll be when he finds out.

"But what really worries me is that story of the doctor. Jealous mania; it squares with Ambroise's character perfectly. He's the kind that does go off his head. I knew his confession of paternalism was a red herring. My word! So the doctor was making threats and flourished pistols, eh? Bad, bad. I don't like it. With those ears of his, he wouldn't hesitate to pull the trigger. Paranoia—that's it. Delusions of persecution. Probably thought the girl and Pop—or maybe the girl and Spotswoode — were plotting his misery and laughing at him.

"You can't tell about those chaps. They're deep—and they're dangerous. The canny Alys had him sized up—warned the Canary against him . . . Taken by and large, it's a devilish tangle. Anyway, I feel rather bucked. We're moving—oh, undoubtedly we're moving — though in what direction I can't even guess. It's beastly annoyin.'"

Markham was waiting for us at the Bankers' Club. He greeted Vance irritably.

"What have you got to tell me that's so damned important?"

"Now, don't get ratty." Vance was beaming. "How's your lodestar Skeel, behaving?"

"So far he's done everything that's pure and refined exeecpt join the Christian Endeavor Society."

"Sunday's coming. Give him time. . . . So you're not happy, Markham dear?"

"Was I dragged away from another engagement to report on my state of mind?"

"No need. Your state of mind's execrable. . . .Cheerio! I've brought you something to think about."

"Damn it! I've got too much to think about now."

"Here, have some brioche." Vance gave the order for lunch without consulting either of us. "And now for my revelations. Pop Cleaver wasn't in Boonton last Monday night. He was very much in the midst of our modern Gomorrah, trying to arrange a midnight party."

"Wonderful!" snorted Markham. "I lave in the font of your wisdom. His alter ego, I take it, was on the road to Hopateong. The super-natural leaves me cold."

"You may be as panosmic as you choose. Cleaver was in New York at midnight, craving excitment."

Quart of Water Cleans Kidneys

Take a Little Salts if Your Back Hurts, or Bladder is Troubling You

No man or woman can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Eating too much rich food creates acids, which excite the kidneys. They become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood. Then we get sick. Rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders often come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys, or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, begin drinking a quart of water each day, also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, and in a few days your kidneys may act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush and stimulate the kidneys; also to help neutralize the acids in the system, so they no longer cause irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby often avoiding serious kidney complications.

Final Grain Review.

Chicago, Mar. 19.—Reports of heavy export sales over the week end, combined with a half to 2 cent advance in the cash market sent Chicago corn higher but profit taking which developed in all pits held down their advance.

Wheat and oats advanced early in the day, but heavy profit taking cut down oats gains and sent wheat downward to a fractionally lower close.

Final figures: Wheat, ⅛c to ¼c off; corn, ⅜c to 1¼c up and oats unchanged to ¼c up. Provisions closed lower.

Seaboard dispatches indicated continued export business in corn and receipts here were light for a Monday at 296 cars. The light receipts coupled with good demand sent cash corn into its surprising bulge and the futures market had little opposition in following the upturn. Belt weather was cold and clear. Considerable profit taking failed to depress the market during the morning.

Higher Liverpool markets, exports of 1,000,000 bushels and some reports of damage to winter wheat were the bullish influences in wheat. Profit taking, however, was heavy in this pit and the gains were not all held. Most of the export business was in Manitobas for the United Kingdom and the continent. Receipts were large at 70 cars and the cash market held unchanged. The small advances in oats were made mostly on the fact that last week's export business was heaviest of the season. The grain belt continued to report, however, that large acreages of abandoned winter wheat are to be seeded to oats. This news started profit taking and cut down the early gains. Receipts were 81 cars and cash oats advanced ¼c.

OREGON WINS STATE TITLE

NORTHWEST MISSOURI CHAMPS DEFEAT SPRINGFIELD.

WILL GO TO CHICAGO

Presenting one of the most sensational brands of basketball that has been seen in years Oregon won the high school basketball championship of Missouri at Columbia Saturday night, defeating Springfield in the finals 25 to 16.

Together with the honor of winning the state championship, the team which won the Northwest Missouri district basketball tournament on the State Teachers College floor here March 10, placed two men on the state all-star selection. McIntyre was chosen as one of the forwards, and Stalcup, center, was changed to a guard by newspaper correspondents who selected eleven men from the sixteen teams in the tournament as of all-star calibre.

Gilman City, the other finalist in the Northwest district tournament, was defeated in the semi-finals of the consolation flight by Warrenton, 29 to 25. Warrenton was defeated in the consolation finals by Soldan of St. Louis, 24 to 22. Oregon eliminated Soldan in the first round of the championship flight.

Trailed at the Half.

The new state champions trailed Springfield, tournament runnerup, 9 to 11 at the half, but soon overcame the lead and forged ahead with a comfortable margin to finish the game. A nearly impenetrable defense presented by Springfield, runnerup in the Southwest Missouri district tourney, compelled the northwest Missouri team to shoot frequently from mid-court. Huff, lanky forward of Oregon, made good five long shots and four free throws to become high point man in the championship final match.

The Oregon five established a record in its semi-final contest by eliminating Kansas City Northeast, the first time in twelve years a Kansas City team has failed to place in the championship finals.

McIntyre, Oregon forward, rolled up three points in the opening quarter while Babson of Springfield, led at the end of the first period, 4 to 3. Turner and Huff engaged in a long shot duel in the second quarter and Springfield had the better of it by two points at the half way mark.

Springfield in Lead.

Babson increased Springfield's lead to four points as the second half started, but Huff again figured in the scoring to the extent of two successive goals, placing Oregon in the lead, which it never relinquished as the game wore on.

McIntyre and Stalcup then aided Huff in massing the lead which gave a small town team its first state championship in several years.

Oregon held a lead, 18 to 14 as the three-quarter mark was passed, and cautious passing and shooting, coupled with brilliant offensive forays assured Oregon the victory.

Never more than three points separated the two team until the final five minutes of play, when Stalcup, Oregon center, and Huff unleashed a scoring barrage of long baskets that broke the spirit of the lads from the land of the Ozarks.

Springfield Star Guarded.

The husky Bobsin of Springfield, who secured the winning goals in the last minutes of the over-time periods Friday night to beat Kansas City Central, had few open shots at the basket with Nelson, the Oregon star guard, trailing him all over the court.

Egbert and Turner led the attack for the Springfield team, while Huff and McIntyre never allowed one to forget they were about the "class" of the tournament.

Coach Ivan Nigh of Oregon announced his squad would go to Chicago to represent Missouri in the annual National Interscholastic Basketball Tournament.

Has No Gymnasium.

The Oregon team, winners of the championship, has no gymnasium in which to practice, its followers recounted. Starting early in September on an outdoor court, the Oregonians practiced nearly six months of the year.

The Methodist Church is the indoor practice court and seats are removed to allow the team to work. Oregon has not been defeated in outdoor competition. Several of the Methodist Church members were among Oregon rooters at Columbia.

Town Celebrates.

Oregon, Mo., March 19.—The whole town of Oregon is excited but happy over the victory of the local high school team in the championship game of the state basketballball tournament.

More than 100 of the 1,000 residents of the town were at the game in Columbia, while the remaining 900 were celebrating and starting plans for a monster celebration banquet to be held Monday night in honor of the returning champions.

High School students and others on hearing the results of the final game Saturday night, had snake dances in the streets, and Oregon yells were heard from one end of the town to the other.

The celebration is expected to be climaxed with the banquet tonight at the first Methodist Church. The Oregon Commercial Club is sponsoring the affair.

Sport Tabloids

BURKS GIVEN MENTION AS A TOURNEY STAR

Clean Play of Bearcats Also Praised. —Hillyards Wanted Hedges.—Cooks the Champions.

Paul Burks, center on the Northwest Missouri Teachers basketball team, was given honorable mention as one of the outstanding players in the National A. A. U. championship tournament at Kansas City.

The Cook Paint and Varnish team won the title by defeating the K. C. A. C. quintet Saturday night 25 to 23. The Sterling Milks of Oklahoma City won third place by defeating the St. Joseph Hillyards, 31 to 30, in the consolation game the same night.

The St. Joseph News-Press had the following Saturday regarding the Bearcats in the national tournament:

"A little praise for the Northwest Missouri State Teachers' College of Maryville and its basketball coach, Shorty Lawrence, if you please. The team advanced into the third round of the national tournament, where it was eliminated by the Hillyards. Lawrence probably has had better teams, but none cleaner. The cagers played a nice brand of ball against the Chemists and did it well. Hedges, forward, is one of the best shots Maryville has ever turned out. He made seven baskets against the Hillyards.

"An attempt was made by the Chemists to secure him for the tournament, but when the St. Joseph club's officials learned that he was only a junior in school they adopted their usual hands-off policy. No cager who is not a senior and who has no other sports in which to compete is taken by the Hillyards in their pre-tourney gathering of material; a commendable policy."

Tunney to Fight Only Once, Rickard Says

Bout to Take Place in July, With an Opponent to Be Named Later, He Announces.

Miami Beach, Fla., March 19.—Gene Tunney will defend his heavyweight boxing title only once this year, it was announced today after a conference between Tunney and Tex Rickard.

The bout will occur in July with an opponent who has not yet been selected, Rickard said.

"I don't believe it is possible to stage two heavyweight championship matches this year," Rickard said. "Tunney had agreed to box the man I select early in June and give me an option on the second contest for later in the summer.

"I had hopes of putting Jack Dempsey in one of the contests, but now that Dempsey has emphatically announced his retirement, it seems there is a possibility for but one contest on account of lack of a second opponent."

Chicago, March 19.—Promoter James C. Mullen of Chicago wired Gene Tunney, World's heavyweight champion, an offer last night of a guarantee of $400,000 with a privilege of 50 per cent of the net receipts for a championship fight in Chicago this summer.

Walter Johnson May Be Out Permanently

Jacksonville, Fla., Mar. 19.—One of baseball's greatest heroes, Walter Johnson, came here today to consult a diagnostician whose verdict may mean that the beloved "Big Train" has pitched his last game.

Pale, weak and 20 pounds under weight Johnson is feared to be suffering from infection of the kidneys which followed a severe attack of influenza this winter.

Johnson, who was appointed manager of the Newark International League Club after his release by the Washington Senators last Fall, had hoped to get into uniform and pitch a few games for the Bears during the coming season.

As it is, he has been unable even to fulfill his duties as manager of the club.

Catholic School for Negroes.

St. Louis, Mo., March 19.—A $200,000 Catholic school for negroes, the first of its kind in Missouri, is to be constructed here by St. Elizabeth's parish, the Rev. William M. Markoe has announced. The school will accommodate 1,000 pupils.

$97,000 to Winner of Tia Juana Race

Tijuana, Mex., March 19.—Crystal Pennant, a cast-off from the Pineland Stables, occupied a place of prominence in the turf world today by his neat victory in the Coffroth Handicap here yesterday.

Closing with a rush, Crystal Pennant won by a length from Sun God II, with Carlaris third and Cantankerous fourth.

The victory was worth approximately $97,000 to W. H. Hoffman of Ventura, Calif., who races in the name of the R. C. Stables. It was the richest race ever run in Mexico or America. The previous record purse was $91,790, won by Anita Peabody in the futurity at Belmont Park last September.

Third choice in the betting, Crystal Pennant paid $13.50 straight, $6.40 place, and $4.40 to show on $2 mutuels.
